Historical note:

The United States Army Tropical Research Medical Laboratory (TRML) in Puerto Rico was established from an Armed Forces Epidemiological Board, Commission on Immunization project. It began in 1950 utilizing the facilities of the former Medical Laboratory, Antilles Department, Fort Brooke, Puerto Rico. It was redesignated as the US Army Tropical Research Medical Laboratory in 1957. Its mission was the conduct of "tropical medical research unencumbered by additional secondary missions." It mainly studied communicable diseases such as schistosomiasis and filariasis; and metabolism. The TRML closed on 30 June 1966.

Scope and content of the collection:

The TRML records include correspondence, photographs, and a report.

Processing information:

Processed by: Lara D'Agaro

Processing note: Original order was retained. Materials were separated by document type and arranged chronologically. Exact duplicates were removed and discarded. Most metal staples, paper clips and metal binders were removed. The photographs were placed in Mylar sleeves. All documents have been rehoused in acid-free folders.
